What If...

Hi everyone, it's the Dragon Boat Festival!

The festival comes from a Chinese story, where the poet and minister Qu Yuan was accused for treason, and he threw himself into the river.

Oh King of dynasty, why you not listen to my advice and accuses me as traitor...

What meaning does

The citizens, who admired Qu Yuan, raced out in boats to save him.

They couldn't find his body, so they threw rice dumplings into the river, hoping the fish would eat the rice instead of Qu Yuan's body.

Today, dragon boat racing becomes a sport event, and rice dumplings become a traditional food.
Which is quite fattening

I can even see dragon boat races from my window!

Talking about dragon boat racing...

Announcing the June theme!

Paternity June

This month I will be drawing great dads

of the animal kingdom!

Emperor Penguin dads spend winter months incubating their eggs between legs and protect their babies from the harsh Antarctic cold, all the while eating nothing, until the mums comes back from fishing!

Follow here to keep up with my monthly drawings!
